

Assignment 4.3. / Statistical population genetics 2016

Write an essay by using one of the attached publication as starting material.

Each paper includes one or several statistical methods for analyzing population genetics / evolutionary data. On the basis of literature references in the publications, find also at least one publication in which one method is described. Include this to your essay. A reasonable length for an essay is about 5 pages. An essay should not include copied sentences from publications. An essay should be written by your own words. An essay should not include pictures or tables (from the publications).